Question

A staunch supporter of women’s voting rights, Wilhelmina Kekelaokalaninui Widemann Dowsett sought to coordinate the efforts of suffragists in her native Hawai’i. _____ in 1912, she founded the National Women’s Equal Suffrage Association of Hawai’i, an organization that lobbied for women’s voting rights in the US territory.

Which choice completes the text with the most logical transition?

Answer

- A. In other words,
- B. Conversely,
- C. To that end,
- D. Alternatively,

Correct Answer: C

Rationale

Choice C is the best answer. “To that end” logically signals that the information in this sentence—that Dowsett founded the National Women’s Equal Suffrage Association of Hawai’i—describes an action Dowsett took to achieve the goal stated in the previous sentence: to coordinate the efforts of suffragists in Hawai’i.

Choice A is incorrect because “in other words” illogically signals that the information in this sentence about Dowsett founding a women’s suffrage association is a paraphrase or restatement of the previous information about Dowsett seeking to coordinate suffragists’ efforts. Instead, the sentence describes a specific action Dowsett took to achieve this goal. Choice B is incorrect because “conversely” illogically signals that the information in this sentence about Dowsett founding a women’s suffrage association contrasts with the previous information about Dowsett seeking to coordinate suffragists’ efforts. Instead, the sentence describes a specific action Dowsett took to achieve this goal. Choice D is incorrect because “alternatively” illogically signals that the information in this sentence about Dowsett founding a women’s suffrage association presents an alternative to her seeking to coordinate suffragists’ efforts. Instead, the sentence describes a specific action Dowsett took to achieve this goal.
